Results of Trial Voluntary Protest Program

This notice summarizes the results of the first Trial Voluntary Protest Program. This program was announced in the Commissioner's Notice of May 7, 1974, which appeared in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE on June 4, 1974 at 923 O.G. 2.

Under the Program, a limited number of applicants were given an opportunity to waive confidentiality of their allowed applications in order to allow publication and public inspection thereof prior to issuance of a patent.

A request for a waiver of confidentiality was mailed in 2,000 applications. Two were returned undelivered by the Postal Service. Signed waivers of confidentiality were received for 667 applications within the two-month period for response to the request letter. At least one claim, and a drawing figure, if any, from each of the 667 applications was published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of January 28, 1975. That issue of the OFFICIAL GAZETTE also included a notice, at 930 O.G. 1454, which gave additional information relating to inspection of the published applications and the filing of protests.

The period for submitting protests was three months in length, ending on April 28, 1975. During this period 67 protests were filed in sixty applications.

The evidence against allowability of claims submitted in the sixty applications was considered by the appropriate examiners and group directors. The group directors determined that claims should be rejected and prosecution should be reopened in 37 applications. No prima facie showing of non-patentability was deemed made in the protests to 23 applications, and consequently, the prosecution was not reopened in these applications.

These statistics are shown, by examining group, in Table I.

The following data were tabulated about the 667 published patent applications:

1. 9 percent of the applications published were protested.
2. 120 requests for access to the published applications were made during the protest period.
3. Approximately 100 requests for copies of the file wrapper contents of the published applications were made during the protest period.
4. 7 percent of the published applications were divisional applications.
5. 8 percent of the published applications were continuation-in-part applications.
6. 5 percent of the published applications were continuations.

The following data show the origin and ownership of the published applications as compared to the patents issued in 1974.

Protests Filed

As indicated above, 67 protests were received in the sixty protested applications. Seven applications attracted two protests each. No application received more than two protests. The 37 applications in which prosecution has been reopened constitute 62 percent of the applications in which protests were received.

The following data in Table III were tabulated from questionnaires completed by the examiner in each protested application.

TABLE III.—PROTESTER INFORMATION

Protester	Reopened		Not reopened		Total
	Number of protests	Percent	Number of protests	Percent	Number of protests	Percent

Percent of total	65.7		34.3		100

The protests in 90% of both the reopened and not reopened applications appeared to originate from corporations.

Protest Content

The issues or grounds for non-patentability raised in the 67 protests filed are tabulated in Table IV. The number shown indicates the number of protests which involved the indicated issue. It will be noted that some protests involved more than one issue.

TABLE IV.—ISSUES INVOLVED IN PROTESTS

Most of the protests filed included the citation of at least one prior art reference. A few protests were based upon prior art already of record in the applications. Others were based upon newly cited references, and some were based upon a combination of prior art already of record with newly cited references. The number of protesters relying upon prior art of record and newly cited prior art and the type of references relied upon is shown in Table V.

Summary

Only a few letters from the public were received which commented on the Trial Voluntary Protest Program. Most of these related to the problems of obtaining copies of the January 28, 1975 OFFICIAL GAZETTE.

Of the 667 published applications, two have been expressly abandoned by the applicant. Prosecution of one application has been reopened by the examiner on newly discovered prior art even though no protest was filed. Also, two applications are being held in the examining groups pending possible interferences. Otherwise, all non-protested and non-reopened applications have been forwarded to the Patent Issue Division for processing.

A Second Trial Voluntary Protest Program will commence in the next few weeks. The program announcement appears in the September 16, 1975 OFFICIAL GAZETTE.

C. MARSHALL DANN,
Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks.

Dated: Sept. 4, 1975.
